A WOEFUL COMEDY.

The Sad, But True, Story of Robert Barrack, an Artificial Man.

Robert Barrock was a sincere, though highly artificial man. That is to say, he was nothing of a hypocrite, in spite of the fact that he had one false eye, a wooden leg, an artificial arm, an artificial larynx, not to mention five very handsome sets of teeth, which he wore on different occasions
as the spirit moved him.

The only act of deception of which Robert Barrock had ever been guilty was that he had concealed from the fair Amanda Perkins, with whom he was deeply in love, the undoubted fact that he had one eye,
one leg, one arm, one larynx, and no end of nearly white teeth in the gravels, and that a census of his original features would disclose the unhappy truth that he was not a man, but a machine.

Barrock had not intended to declare the passion he felt for the lovely heroine.

Yellow fever is doing deadly work at Rio Janeiro.

The rush to Oklahoma is something of a craze.

Senator Sherman is going to Europe in May.

Night before last was the 24th anniversary of the assassination of President Lincoln.

The prohibitionists of Scott county have nominated J. Y. Kelley for the Legislature.

Miss Nannetta Daisy, known in Kentucky politics, is one of the numerous Oklahoma boomers.

The Louisville colored Republicans have resolved against the Alabama "White man's Republican party" idea.

Richmond, Va., is not dead. A ten-acre lot that sold for $3,300, five years ago, was sold on Thursday for $41,000.

Barry Stoddard published a card in last Wednesday's Courier-Journal declining to longer be a candidate for State Treasurer.

The Republican State convention to nominate a candidate for State Treasurer will convene in Louisville on the 22nd of May.

Montana has elected a Democratic Legislature, and that means Democratic U. S. Senators. Dakota will soon fall into line.

Mahone lost $15,000 in a wild-card lumber scheme, originated by Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate Canada, and has sued for damages.

The first "White Cap" to be convicted is in Arkansas. The fellows across the Ohio, who sneer at justice in the South, will make a note of this.

Tom O'Brien, for killing Bettie Shea, at Lexington, and Bill Fox, watchman at Paris depot, for killing an unknown negro, have been held without bail.

Governor Buckner has ordered Adj. General Castleman to select 300 State Militia to attend the Washington Inauguration Centennial at New York, and the Governor will accompany the "boys."

Harlan county now has a newspaper, its first one. The mountains are rapidly filling up with new settlers. Let the Harlan people read more and fight less, and they'll live longer to say the least.

The new steamer Danmark was abandoned at sea, 600 miles off the coast of Ireland, but what went with the passengers and crew, numbering nearly seven hundred, is a mystery. The abandoned steamer was discovered floating.

Lewis Hayden, who was a slave and ran away from his master, near Lexington, Ky., in the long ago, was buried in Boston with great ceremony on last Wednesday, many of the most distinguished white citizens being present in the church.

Moses Lyman, of Waverly, New York, is the inventor of a new game called "Pigs in Clover." It has struck the town hard, and several parties are expected to go crazy. Mr. Lyman has sued a man in the U. S. Court at Louisville for $10,000 damages for infringement.

How does the following description of a Leavenworth, Kan., municipal election figure?

One of the morning incidents in another ward was the voting of a straight Democratic ticket by a colored woman, 106 years old. The blacks jeered her, but the old woman hung fast to her ticket and said she would live to bury some of "dem trash" yet. The Fourth Ward polls witnessed an odd scene. A handsome, well-dressed, tanned man, with a woman of delicate appearance came up to the polling place early. She alighted with a colored woman, with the evident intention of voting her. In an instant a swarm of colored men and women were about them. The little woman looked dazed for a moment, then, frightened, she uttered a little scream and fell in a dead faint in the arms of her husband, who had been coming to her assistance meanwhile. At Topeka the best ladies in the city turned out, and, as a rule, voted as their husbands did.

WILL SOMEBODY TELL US?

Often we are asked by horse men, "why don't you get up a horse column every week?"

We answer that we "can't get sufficient horse news to fill a column every week."

"What," they exclaim, "can't find enough horse news to fill a column a week, when every stock paper you pick up is full of it?"

Then we turn to the stock papers and find item after item like the following:

"F. B. Marion, West Branch, Michigan, has bought of F. E. Talmage, East Saginaw, Michigan, the brown horse, J. B. Gould, by O. B. Gould, and Merrill's Black Hawk."

How much information is there in such an item? No price is given, no record, no age. Nobody here knows Mr. Marion or Mr. Talmage, or any thing whatever of their career in horses. Of what earthly benefit, or any other kind of benefit, can such an item be to anybody? Let us hear from you.

Russell Harrison, son of the President, and editor of the Montana Live Stock Journal, was arrested in New York on Thursday, at the instance of ex-Governor Crosby, charged with libel. He gave bail in the sum of $5,000.

HARRISON AND CIVIL SERVICE.

The Lancaster News says that "W. O. Bradley, W. J. Landrum, W. G. Dunlap and John K. Faulkner, Sr., Lancaster's big four, have been to Washington City, and returned empty handed. As we predicted in our last issue, their applications were premature, since Harrison had committed himself to the civil service doctrine. We have interviewed two of the four, from whom we learn that the policy of the President was not to remove any officer without cause. In fact, when W. O. Bradley approached the President in behalf of Gen. Landrum, for the appointment to the Pension Agency of Kentucky, he responded: 'Have you any charges to prefer against Gen. Buell, the present incumbent?' Bradley replied: 'I have not.' Gen. Buell's term expires Jan. 8, 1890, and he will not be removed until that time."

The civil service and the "outs" are evidently not harmonious elements.

A PATHETIC INCIDENT.

The recent Samoan hurricane continued with unabated violence throughout the night and day and into the succeeding night. Ship after ship went to destruction on the reef, entailing a loss of three million dollars and 150 lives. Fifteen vessels had gone to pieces before the eyes of the U. S. man-of-war Trenton, who kept battling with the fury that every moment was expected to demolish her. The water broke in and put out the fires. The Trenton, with its four hundred and fifty crew, agitated and helpless souls, and with a sublimity attained only by a ship in a storm, floated toward the reef, while thousands of powerless spectators stood in the gloom on shore to witness the tragic close of an unparalleled scene. Save the roar of the storm, there was silence—an awful hush. At the last moment, the marine band of the Trenton appeared on deck and played the Star Spangled Banner, until the thrilling strains were lost in the awful crash on the rocks.

"A BAWN AWTER"

The Chicago News grows truly humorous, when it does grow, or it doesn't grow at all. Occasionally it turns its fustian eye toward Kentucky, and never fails to bring down the house. The other day it perpetrated the following:

One Kentucky gentleman meets another Kentucky gentleman, and they address one another with that solemn earnestness which is characteristic of Southern high life: "Good mornin', sah! Hope you are well, sah! What have you been this mornin'?" I have just come from the coat-house, sah; Sen'ton Blackbun has been making a speech—the finest speech I have heard since the waltz. He is a bawn awter, sah—a bawn awter!" "A bawn awter? Don't you know what a bawn awter is?" Why, sah, you and I would say, "Two and two make fo', but a bawn awter wouldn't say that; a bawn awter would say, 'When, in the course of human events, it becomes nec'ssa' or expedient to coalesce two integers and two other integers, the result—I declare it boldly and without fear or favor—the result, by a simple arithmetical calculation called addition, is fo'!" That's a bawn awter, sir."

NO COLORED MAN NEEDS APPLY.

A "White Man's Republican party" was organized at Birmingham, ten days ago, by a large number of Republicans who assembled for that purpose. The word was passed around before-hand that the time had come to form a Republican party composed exclusively of white men, and those who were present were there with the intention of doing precisely what they did do.

They argue that Mr. Harrison was elected without the aid of the colored vote, and that therefore the colored man is not entitled to any thing.

That humorous prodigy, Bill Arp, announced two months ago, through Atlanta's great literary paper, the "Sunny South," that the white Republicans sooner or later would cut the acquaintance of the colored Republican, since it had been conclusively demonstrated that a Republican President can be elected without the aid of the colored vote.

Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois are Republican states, and have considerable colored vote, but they would be Republican even if the colored vote should change over to the Democratic side.

Thus the colored voter will see that the Republicans care nothing for his vote, and the only thing left him is to vote with his neighbors and friends, the Democrats. In unity there is happiness, to say the least, and if the colored voters will hitch to the old Democratic ship, the day may soon come when they can get a slice of the Government pie.

In "A Chapter from My Memoirs," which appeared in Harper's Magazine for May, Mr. D. B. Lewis, who some years ago succeeded the late Laurence Oliphant as Paris correspondent of the London Times, declares his belief that by a sort of transmission of souls Frederick the Great has reappeared in this century in the person of Bismarck, and Catiline in the person of Boulanger.

An amendment to the constitution of the United States to become a law, requires first a two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress, second to be approved by the President, and third to be submitted to the States, two-thirds of which must vote for its adoption by a two-thirds vote of both branches of the legislature of each State.

THE STATE TREASURY.

State Inspector Miller made his regular monthly examination of the condition of the State Treasury last Tuesday. The amount of cash to the credit of the State in the Farmers' Bank and the Branch Bank of Kentucky is $299,473.00. Against this sum there are outstanding checks to the amount of $22,413.80, leaving a balance in favor of the State of $277,059.20. These examinations, which are very complete, entering into every detail of the transactions of the Treasury, are made at the beginning of each month, thus furnishing the Governor and the people, through Inspector Miller's reports, an exact knowledge of the condition of the finances of the State. No business can be properly conducted where those who control it are unaware of their financial standing, and certainly the Commonwealth of Kentucky can not afford to be without information as to its status. This Inspector Miller supplies monthly in a succinct form, and the State Treasurer, subject to the actual substance of his report shall be "understanded by the people"—Frankfort Capital.

[FOR THE CLIMAX.]

WHY NOT EXAMINE.

The natural features of a country must always have a great deal to do in the location of railways. It of course takes money to build them, but in order to save money, the road should be located on the best and shortest route. If the present line of the R. N. I. B. road runs on the South side of Richmond, then the natural and sensible route is to keep the right of way East, and passing around Mrs. Gregory's, take a bee line down an easy grade passing a little to the right of Hugh Colyer's house, and cutting the point of the hill at Wm. Bates' apple orchard, and there entering the Muddy Creek bottom, you have an absolute plain and fair line to the crossing of said creek with an inexpensive bridge in David Black's bottom, and thence up the Reeves branch with a splendid run to Speedwell passing same on the South side near Miss Polly Moberley's, and leaving W. B. Smith's stone house on the right, strike the other survey on the Oldham branch and down it to Little Rock. This is certainly the natural and easy route over which to run, and if an engineer can only be induced to look at it, he would at once clap his hands in ecstasy and say "Eureka," I have found it. Who ever wrote the piece in THE CLIMAX last week signed L. hit the nail on the head; he knocked center out. I have been all over Madison county, and have surveyed the greater part of it, and know what I affirm to be strictly true. There is no other route running to Little Rock over which the road can be easily built.

The Hickory Lick road is perhaps the next best. The steepest grade would be from Richmond to Fort Estill, and from Speedwell down the Oldham branch. But the Oldham branch is twice as long as the Dodd branch or the Thorpe branch, and the hills at Downing Creek are not half so high at the upper place as at the two lower places. And coming up the Oldham branch from Little Rock this would be a much easier grade than running so high on the hill as the present survey does, because they cross the ridge just sooner by turning to the right through Frogtown and down Hickory Lick. The cuts and fills would be very light indeed, and this would look like building a road over the plains of the West, instead of through the mountains of Kentucky. This would bring the road within the line of the right through Frogtown and the coal regions of Jackson county and South-eastern part of Madison, and would not run so near the Kentucky Union road in Clark and Estill counties.

Give Speedwell a chance. Why not examine it and be convinced?

Colony Trash $4.50 to $7.00.
